

Blessed with Hope Physician-Assisted Suicide

Uphold and support the life of the caregiver.

Be active and present in the end-of-life care for others.

Invite a speaker or pastor to speak about end-of-life issues.

Pray for those with terminal diagnoses.

Be aware of and advocate for life-affirming legislation.

Volunteer for hospice or visit those homebound or in the hospital.

Provide ways to keep the dying connected to church.

Confess the truth that worth and identity are not based on ability.

Acknowledge and communicate the Lord's presence and His purpose in suffering.

Provide information about the negative aspects of physician-assisted suicide.

Recognize and affirm the vocation being served at the end of life.

Recognize symptoms and seek medical help for issues of depression.

For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed to us. -
Romans 8:18
